Students continued to be upset this week as the case of "The People vs. John Muller" dragged on Muller was apprehended by campus security after crawling through an East Hall window almost two weeks ago (Saturday, October 16). He said he was delivering a set of keys to Kathy and Robin Pawling so they next morning. The girls confirmed his story: they had planned to borrow his car, and he had forgotten to give them the keys.

The matter was then turned over to the Dean of Students, Mr. Roloson, who viewed Muller's escapade as a violation of college rules to be dealt for and accepted, and suitable punish-

According to Muller, last Friday he where he was handed a notice to appear in court. Bob Strimple, head of security, told him that this matter was between him (Muller) and the Security Office and no one else need know about it. Contrary to Security's wishes, Muller refused to conceal the matter since he had been charged with a crime and now was required to appear in court.

Muller went to court Monday night accompanied by this reporter and a lawyer retained by some of his friends. Mr. Roloson felt very strong-ly that the case should not be brought to court, and had finally contacted President Chamberlain (away for a conference in Indiana) who felt the About the time of the Roloson called the jussame way. hearing, Mr. Roloson called the jus-tice and requested a dismissal on the behalf of the college. Mr. Strimple indicated that he had no plans for withdrawing the charges.

Muller requested additional time to think about pleading guilty. The justice granted a two-week postponement.

At press time Mr. Strimple had no statement to make about the charges that had been made and his position on them. Many students voiced hope that Dr. Chamberlain's return on erlain's return Wednesday would clear up the mat-

STAR Poll Finds Houghton Community Unimpressed By Candidates' 'Moribund Stumble' Toward Oval Office

Actually, the 1976 l election should have been the 1976 Presidential election should have been one of the more intriguing White House contentions. The speculation back in 1972 was that Richard Nixon, once he completed his term, would appoint a successor to be opposed by Ted Kennedy. Instead, Nixon fell in 1974, and was replaced by a little-known veter-an U.S. Representative. And some-how an unknown Southerner flashed out of the Georgia governor's man-sion to capture the Democratic nod. The nation's voters, however, had become accustomed to the impeccable (though meaningless) campaigns conducted by Richard Nixon, and they gulped as Gerald Ford tripped down airplane ramps and gasped to hear of Jimmy Carter's earthy comments in Playboy. The public felt it was witnessing a moribund stumble towards the Oval Office, and veteran reporter Allen Otten of the Wall Street Journal noted that he had "never encountered such a sour na-tional mood in his 25 years of covering presidential campaigns."
Sensing that the political mood on campus had degenerated even lower than the national average, this re-porter distributed a political aware-ness poll designed to discover the political affiliations and knowledge of the campus community. Under supervision of The Star approximately 300 polls were placed in campus mail-boxes. Only 98 responses were sub-mitted by the deadline date — representing 81 students, 14 faculty and three staff members. The remaining 200 individuals who did not respond titute a terrifyingly large majority, though of course we are unable to determine precisely why this group returned nothing.

Among the 98 respondents, we identified 54% who are supporting Mr. Ford, 34% backing Jimmy Carter, and a mere 12% either undecided or behind a minor party candidate. We discovered that the faculty was by far the best-informed group on c pus. While an average of 83% of the faculty selected the correct responses stions relating to current events, the candidates and the issues. barely 68% of the students and 66% of the staff polled were able to do so. Finally, we grouped student, faculty and staff members by their political affiliations. Our small but unified staff respondents allied behind Faculty members split 50% for Ford, 36% backed Carter, and 14% were independent or undecided. 53% of the students went with Ford, 35% indicated Carter, and 12% remained undecided (we received only one minor party preference - for McCarthy)

The Ford supporters outscored their opposites in the Carter camp in both their knowledge of the candidates and their familiarity with the camp issues. One surprising illustration was provided by a question concern-ing Jimmy Carter's political background. Although 40% of the Ford respondents realized that Carter began his career as a Georgia state senator, only 21% of the Carter people indicated so. With questions pertaining to current events, however, the Carter support maintained a small

The final two questions on the poll determined why the individual sup-ported a particular candidate. An average of 52% of both Carter and Ford supporters selected "restoring integrity to the Executive branch", as President Ford's most significant accomplishment since assuming office. Independents split with 31% choosing restoring integrity, and the same percentage unable to detect a significant accomplishment. Another popular Ford plank rests on his reduction of inflation, and 26% of the Ford people chose this, down to 23% of the Independents, and only 12% of the Carter backers. When asked to the Carter backers. When asked to indicate what Jimmy Carter's main qualfication for President is, 52% of the Carter support chose Mr. Carter's purported qualities of "honesty/sincerty/Christianity" (given as one response), and 20% of this group felt his four years as Governor of Georgia would be most significant. Among Ford backers, 40% felt Carter had no meaningful qualifications, followed by 38% who chose his background as Governor. A mere 11% of the Ford supporters indicated that Carter's honesty, sincerity, and Christianity were valid qualifications.

Conclusions? Only 17% of our respondents had not registered to vote, far below the national average. Un-fortunately, the nearly 200 polls that were not returned would, if included, force this percentage up. Probably upwards of 50% of the eligible voters on this campus have not registered.

The most accurate responses came consistently from the faculty Ford supporters. An average of 92% of supporters. events questions correctly. while their associates in the Carte camp averaged only 76% correct. Conversely, the lowest group was the Ford students, answering correctly 66% of the time. Nudging ahead of them were the Independent faculty (68% correct), Carter students (70%), and Independent students (74%). The only question answered correctly by all the respondents concerned in the correct of the corre cerned Jimmy Carter's Playboy inter-We cannot state that the informed people on campus support a particular candidate, but it's evident from the disparity between faculty and student percentages that more information is needed by the students.

Most disturbing, the Carter backers consistently gave Mr. Carter's claimed qualities of honesty, sincerity, and support. 60% of the Carter faculty and 54% of Carter students responded in this way. Certainly none of us are in a position to judge if Mr. Carter even possesses these attributes but regardless, they hardly qualify him for the White House. Harold Lindsell of Christianity Today not automatically vote for Christians because they are Christians any more than Jews should vote in a bloc for

This reporter admires Mr. Carter for his early assessment would be a year of faith and personalities rather than ideology and issues in American politics, but both he and Mr. Ford have political backgrounds they both are running on political platforms, and both have made some promises. I encourage you to examine these, for I'm afraid that Mr. Carter is asking the American people to simply trust . . . but not think.

Law: the word implies Justice, brings to mind lofty images of balances and blindfolds. Unfortunately, when the law is applied legalistically, without humane consideration, "Justice" can be most unjust.

The Houghton community is witnessing this sort of caricature of Justice The East Hall Incident (see page 1) is an example of the letter of the law divorced from the spirit of the law.

It is true that Mr. Muller entered Ms. Pawling's window. There was, however, no malicious intent on his part. He did not intend to steal from Ms. Pawling or violate her person in any way. He did not even raid her panty drawer. While the visit may have been irregular, it was basically Further, the Dean's Liaison Committee has dealt with Mr. Muller as they have seen fit. The problem — a minor one at that — could have been dealt with completely within the community, equitably and efficiently. In fact, President Chamberlain and Dean Roloson advocated in-community handling of the incident.

However, due to the unreasonable actions of the Security Office, Mr. Muller has been arrested and charged with trespassing, a violation. The problem was already handled by Dean's Liaison. Is Mr. Muller's crime so villainous that it merits the attention of civil authorities? We think not

But, one may say, Mr. Muller did break the law, Perhaps he did. But even the police themselves encourage college security officers to deal with minor violations within the college system. Common sense — and we must use our common sense — indicates that arrest in this case was unjustified. Here too is where humane consideration and especially Christian love come in. Surely, the Christian way is not to use the law against someone in an unjust manner. Minor problems such as this are better handled within the Christian community where one would hope that love and justice together would pre-

The editorial staff of the Star denounces this action of the Security Office. We advocate the withdrawing of legal complaint against Mr. Muller and the subsequent removal of this case from court.

Pressing the law to its fullest extent does not necessarily equal Justice. Perhaps the concept of "blind justice" has been misunderstood.

Kathleen Confer

The first thing our new president, Dr. Chamberlain, had to confront when he returned yesterday from a week-long conference in Indiana was the Muller case. This case not only involves a complex problem, i.e., how to extricate Mr. Muller from the judicial process into which he has been cast; it also raises an equally complex issue, i.e., how shall the College treat students involved in possible misdemeanors?

The first line of defense against crime on campus is the Security Office. In most colleges, Campus Security occupies a level in the hierarchy below administrators. It could be expected that Security would consult with the appropriate administrators and follow their instructions in disposing of the Houghton is not most colleges. Security here has a more ambiguous re-lationship to administrators. While the Security Officer's direct superior is the Business Manager (because 'Buildings and Grounds' are under his care), the Security Officer is not directly subordinate to the Dean of Student Affairs - an administrator equal to the Business Manager. He is to work with the Dean, not under him. It is ironic that while the Business Manager, who is ultimately responsible for college property, has the final word on Security actions in that realm, the Dean of Student Affairs, who is ultimately responsible for people, has only an advisory role in determining their fates at the hands of the Officer.

Thus, when the Security Officer had determined that a building was violated, he could proceed to dispose of the case on the basis that it was trespassing. The Dean of Student Affairs, knowing the human circumstances of the case, had not sufficient authority to check the action of Security And the president, who did, was out of town.

The second, and final, line of defense against crime on campus is civil authority: the police and the courts.

In most colleges, Campus Security is expected to contain crime on campus and to help avoid legal entanglements. Civil authorities respect a college's privilege to maintain order on its own campus.

Again, Houghton does not follow the rule. The Security Officer here is also a civil authority: an Allegany County deputy. Here there is an obvious conflict of interest. When does he take off his Security hat and put on his deputy badge?

When should civil authorities be involved in campus affairs? Certainly when they are able to determine that the law has been broken and they desire to prosecute. But civil authorities have only gotten involved in the past when more serious offenses, such as marijuana possession, were alleged to have happened. An internal affair like the Muller case, already disposed to have happened. An internal affair like the Muller case, already disposed of through college disciplinary channels, would hardly merit their attention.

And should the college invite the authorities to enter its affairs? A Christian college ought to beware of the nature of its legal entanglements. Paul castigated the Corinthians for submitting their "minor matters" to a court composed of "unbelievers." Might not love and mercy prevail in a case where the offender is known to us and to Christ?

Spring fever has come a little early. Unlike the swine flu, it has come before the vaccine against it is ready. The new governance plan has left Security's position undefined to date. The president will have to help formulate a policy for dealing with Security and these minor matters now, in a crisis atmosphere. The policy will come too late for Mr. Muller, but we are confident that it will clear up the ambiguous relationship between the Security Officer and the college administration, and the civil authorities. And it will give students the assurance that they need in this moment of uncertainty.

Poland: No Joke for Ford

by Graham H. Walker

"There is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe, and there never will be under a Ford Administration." responded President Ford during the debate on foreign policy. The ques-tioner, Max Frankel of the New York Times, then gave Ford a chance to escape from his incredible statement by posing a follow-up question: Did the President really mean that the Russians are not using Eastern Europe as their own sphere of influence in occupying most of the countries there and making sure with their troops that it's a Communist zone?

But the President didn't quite extricate himself. "I don't believe, Mr. Frankel, that the Yugoslavians consider themselves dominated by the Soviet Union. I don't believe that the Poles consider themselves dominated by the Soviet Union. Each of these countries is independent, autonomous it has its own territorial integrity, and the United States does not concede that these countries are under the domination of the Soviet Union

Ford seemed to be categorically denying the obvious fact of Russian hegemony over these countries — obvious particularly in the cases of Rumania and Poland. Naturally. there was an immediate fallout from Ford's comments in the U.S. ethnic community. Thousands of Americans of East European descent have rela-tives who still live under the undeniable tyranny of their homelands — or who have escaped and come to the U.S. Aloysius Mazewski, president of the Polish American Congress and the Polish National Alliance, expressed their common reaction: "People can't understand it. They know the Presi-dent knows better." Laszlo Mogyorussy, head of the freedom fighter veterans of the 1956 Hungarian upris-ing, exclaimed, "We should have . . Our faith in the Republican Party is shattered."

Ford needs this group of East European white ethnic voters, a group that is traditionally Democratic but went Republican in both 1968 and (more greatly) in 1972. In a race as ex-cruciatingly close as this year's he needs them even more, for they make up 10% or more of the pivotal states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Michigan, Illinois must fall into the Ford column if he on Tuesday. is to have a chance just how much Ford ruffled the feathers of these voters is not clear. Mr. Mazewski apparently was reconciled to the President when he received a phone call from Ford. He declared himself "satisfied" with "satisfied" Ford's explanation.

Ford continued to explain for several days after the debate. At one point he even said, "The original mistake was mine. I did not express myself clearly; I admit it." The day after the debate, at the University of Southern California, Ford tried to make it clearer: "It is our policy to use every peaceful means to assist countries in Eastern Europe in their efforts to become less dependent on the Soviet Union and to establish closer and closer ties with the West.' Later, Ford elaborated to reporters Later, Ford elaborated to reporters in a nearby city (speaking in the third person): "President Ford does not believe that the Polish people over the long run — whether they are in Poland or whether they are Polish Americans here — will ever condone domination by any foreign (specify He she received that Switch force." He also recognized that Soviet rope, calling this "tragic." He added that the Polish "desire for liberty and freedom is just as great as the desire for liberty and freedom of the American people."

But opinions differ on whether Ford had neutralized his gaffe. The Gallup poll had Ford losing support over it, while the Harris poll argued the op-posite. Gallup showed that Carter's lead, which had dropped to two per-centage points before the second de-bate, increased to four points afterward. Harris, however, showed Carter's pre-debate lead of about nine points drop to five. Polls, as well as people, are fickle.

"Mr. Ford's blunder on Eastern Europe may have a dramatic effect," editorialized the New York Times (which has since endorsed Carter). All reference to the matter however, only four days after the debate and there's been almost no discussion of it in the press since. Of course, his faux pas may yet have a dramatic effect, but we probably won't have any idea until the late night hours on

Letters to the Editors

Dear Dan and Kathy,

Here we are, blatantly telling the world that Jesus Christ is useless. Several students broke some college

Dean's Liason and duly punished.
And there the matter should have been settled. Instead, however, a few days later one of these students is told that he must appear before a court to face a violation charge. I Corinthians 6:1-8 deals very firmly with such circumstances. Read it. Paul blasted the believers. I believe a bit like some of us right now — shook his head, sickened and despairing. "Brother goes to law with brother and that before unbelievers?" Paul asked incredulously. "Here you are," said Paul, "claiming that Jesus Christ can change you into new creatures. It is already a defeat for you that you have lawsuits with each other. But, are you on top of this defeat, going to air your dirty laundry in front of the world? It is better to be wronged or defrauded

And yet, in spite of Scripture's adamant condemnation, this behavior is occuring among us. That is why I said we are declaring that Jesus Christ is useless to the world. If as Christians, we cannot solve our own internal problems, how dare we offer Christ as the solution to the sin of the world?

This letter is not meant to be a sweeping condemnation of the students, faculty or administration. Admittedly, only a tiny few are willing to hold up a useless Christ to the world. But, even a few, by defying Scripture, may put a barrel over Houghton's light for unknown years

Senate Report

by D. K. Knudsen

A rare situation occurred this week in the routine of the Student Senate. There were two meetings, the first being the scheduled weekly meeting and the second being a special session on Thursday night that was called by President of Senate, Steve Horst.

The second meeting dealt with an important motion which was the only pertinent isssue Senate dealt with this eek. The motion involved an issue that should be of concern to all students — the position of the college concerning the circumstances in which civil authorities may be brought on campus. This motion was brought to the floor Tuesday night, but was tabled until the next meeting. The tabling resulted from the Senate's concern as to how President Chamberlain would interpret the motion. These concerns were alleviated by a meeting which took place Thursday morning and involved Horst explain ing the position and intentions of Senate to Dr. Chamberlain. However, the meeting between Horst and Cham berlain did not quell the fears of a small group within Senate. The Senate, after an hour of repetitive, tedious debate, passed the motion by the overwhelming majority of 21-5,

The motion reads: Following a complaint by Campus

Security, a college student has re-cently been arrested by civil authori-ties on a charge of trespassing on college property following a com-plaint by campus security.

The more general question of civil discipline of students has been raised by this incident and students are unsure as to the college policy on this

Therefore, we request President Chamberlain to issue a statement stating the position of Houghton College on this question, clarifying for the student body under what circumstances civil authorities may brought in.

While this action by Senate is indeed a proper course to follow, and is without extreme implicit controversy, it is unfortunate that progressive action by Senate is contin ject to excessive scrutiny.

(*You may if you wish see how your representatives voted on this motion as the vote was recorded by roll call and entered in the minutes.)

Body Life Services Seek to Supplement Sunday Worship

"How is it then, brethren? when ye come together, every one of you hath a psalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation. Let all things be done unto edifying." (I Cor. 14:26) The apostle Paul describes here a worship service where each person contributes something for the edification of the Church. He speaks of a service dedicated to Body ministry, where Christians don't go looking for a blessing, but go desiring to edify other Chris-tians. A service whose primary con-cern is life — the life of the Body and ultimately the lives of the individual members of that Body. A Body Life service.

A service patterned after this New Testament example was created here at Houghton to provide an opportunity for more individual and personal expressions of worship. It meets at three o'clock in Presser Hall and is led by Russ Ely and John Loftness with Dr. McCallum serving as advisor. A core group of students supports these leaders; they are committed to upholding the services and leaders in prayer. This nucleus actually represents a microcosm of what Body Life is all about: members of a body dedicated to the support of that body through their specific ministries. The fact that there is a need for a service of this type might lead some to think that there is a judgment being made on the Sunday morning service. "We are making no judg-ment at all," says John Loftness, "the Body Life is not a church within a church or a separate church. We are a part of the church at Houghton that seeking to supplement the worship various students who feel the need for a service of this type. We are in no way trying to replace the Sunday morning worship service and we en-courage students who attend our meeting to also attend a Sunday morning service." Russ Ely also emphasized the supplementary nature of the Body Life service. "The Body Life serves to build upon what we learn in the morning worship service. You can never replace pulpit preach-ing."

The Body Life service follows a general order of worship: singing and praying, teaching, sharing from the Body, and praying for needs. This pattern is meant to facilitate order but is not so rigid as to stifle spontaneity. The leaders encourage paticipation by everyone in order build maturity in the exercising of his particular gift. It is this personal and individual participation that makes these services so unique. Not that the gifts themselves are so unique, but that they are expressed through unique individuals to a unique

Apparently it is not immature for college students to dress up as their favorite heroes during the Halloween season. "I'll be appearing as William Faulkner," says John Kelly, editor of the Lanthorn and organizer of that the Lanthorn and organizer of that publication's Halloween eve bash, "my roommate, Dan Hawkins, will be dressed like Huckleberry Hound." Kathy Confer, co-editor of the Star, states that she would like to appear as a penguin, "although I haven't yet decided which one." Yes, most students will be costumed today and tomorrow, some to meet place see tomorrow, some to meet class re-quirements for party attendance and some simply to save money.

Allegany County Outreach (ACO), which ministers to the physical and spiritual needs of the people of Alle-gany County, will hold its annual Halloween costume party tomorrow from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. Approxi-mately 120 children from Allegany County have attended the parties in previous years.

The purpose of the party, according to Juanita Smart, party chairperson for ACO, is to give the children a fun time and to provide them with an opportunity to experience Christ's love. The members of ACO wish to share Christ's love with them in a way they can understand, and provide for them an opportunity to hear the Gospel. A Little Rascals film entitled "Spoof Goof" will be shown. There will be games and refreshments as well as singing and devotions. The Lanthorn party will be held tomorrow night at 8:15 in Wesley Chapel. It features three scarey films, including a full-length feature,

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde", starring Spencer Tracy. Admission rates will be lower for students and others ap-pearing in costume at the door. Free cider and donuts are included in the admission price.

The Freshman class will be having a Halloween party tonight. It will begin with the movie "The Pit and the Pendulum" in Wesley Chapel. Afterwards cider and donuts will be served in the basement of Wesley Chapel. The class will be singing pumpkin carols as well as performing skits and providing musical en-

Refreshments including hot chocolate, donuts, and popcorn balls will be served. There will also be games that evening.

A movie which is to be a surprise, will be featured at the Junior class Halloween party. Held tonight at the Campground Dining Hall, it will be a costume party. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. There will be refreshments and games.

Food, fun, and foul play is the theme of the Senior class Halloween party which will be held in Mr. Reist's barn in Hume, NY tonight. Class members as well as judges must dress up. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. There will be a ghost story, Halloween games, and refreshments. A mystery guest will be present at the party.

The latest California poll shows President Ford has moved ahead of Jimmy Carter. The Independent Field Research Corporation says the Republican incumbent, at 46 per cent, leads the Democratic challenger, with 40 per cent, by a "statistically significant" six percentage points. The poll says Carter is having trouble with Democratic voters, the majority in the

WASHINGTON (UPI 10/29)

Yesterday Ford said Carter is slipping in the polls because of public concern over his economic policies. Ford himself promised to push a tax cut. Carter said he is not losing ground to Ford. Carter also says there could be tax cuts if economic growth is around five per cent, unemployment is cut, inflation is controlled and spending normalized.

Not a single dissenting voice is expected today when the Soviet parliament votes on the next five-year economic plan. It is the most ambitious in Soviet history, calling for Soviet industrial production to surpass U.S. output in four years. Yesterday several legislators went so far as to criticize Soviet economic performance in the last five years.

Klob's Club Laughs at Predictions By Dominating Houseleague Soccer

Several weeks ago, the Star published its predictions of the season finish for men's houseleague soccer. The predictions went something

- 2. Tribe of Judah
- 3. Klob's Club

Those of us in the know snickered at this prediction but we remained silent, knowing that some people were going to be surprised. The season began that same week, and the Seniors and Tribe of Judah played to a 1-1 tie. In the second game, the Star's favorite Seniors faced Klob's who had never played together team. The game, though dominated by the tough Club, was nevertime period, Klob's team really put the pressure on, and eventually leftwinger Randy Freeman scored the

The Club's next game was also against the Seniors, and Klob's men must have been a little overconfident, for they fell to the Seniors, 3-2. How-ever, they recovered quickly, and the next night they blew out Tribe of Judah, 4-1, with center forward George Palmer scoring 3 goals. This Judah. gave the Club a 2-1 record and first place, and nobody ever caught them. They clinched the league title the next week with two shutout victories over Tribe of Judah, 3-0 and 1-0. In the first of these games, halfback Don Shoultz sparked the victory with his 2 goals. In the 1-0 triumph, co-captain Keith Kirkner scored the game's only goal for the champion The last game of the season for Klob's team was against the Sen iors and although they had the title wrapped up, they wanted to avenge their only loss. The Club took an early 1-0 lead in this game but the Seniors tied it with a flukey goal early in the second half. Klob's men dous pressure on the Senior goal. Finally Kirkner scored on a fine pass from Palmer, and a tremendous de-fense made the goal stand up as the margin of victory.

Thus, the team picked by the Star to finish last dominated men's house league soccer with a 5-1 record. Klob's Club, along with co-captains Steve Klob, Mark Lindley, and Kirkner, was led by its talented forward line, composed of the aforementioned Freeman, Palmer, and Kirkner. The Club's strong defense, headed by Lindley, intimidated everyone and made life easy for goalie Steve Starks who allowed only 3 goals in the four and one-half games that he played, and recorded two shutouts

After the regular season ended, Klob's Club was challenged by the women's houseleague soccer champs (team name unknown), who gave the Club a tougher battle than was expected. The men eventually pulled out a 5-2 victory, and established themselves as the premier houseleague soccer team in 1976, and pos-regular season, including the one played Tuesday against LeMoyne Col-lege, it is not too soon for soccer fans to start/looking forward to District playoffs.

After last Tuesday's 2-1 loss at Fredonia the soccer team came back to defeat Elmira College 8-1 in its most impressive win of the season thus far. Going into last Thursday's game both teams were undefeated in the PCAC. Elmira had previously defeated Roberts Wesleyan, Eisen hower and St. John Fisher. The scouting reports indicated that Elmira was a vastly improved team from last year when it won none of its PCAC games and lost to us 11-0.

playoffs. But it is tacitly understood that the winner will be in the top spot when it comes to deciding which schools qualify.

Considering the situation, the 8-1 victory over Elmira gave the soccer team a tremendous boost in its drive for the playoffs. The win made the team's record 7-4-1. This record may not indicate an overly impressive per-formance by the soccer team but it must be kept in mind that the four losses were all to state schools by close margins. The remainder of the teams Houghton played were handled quite easily as evidenced by the fact that it outscored these opponents 31-5.

It has not been definitely determined that the winner of the PCAC what this record may reveal, however, is that while the soccer team is opponents on its schedule as expected, it cannot come up with the big wins it needs in order to be the top-rate contender it purports to be. A win over Brockport or Fredonia would have put Houghton in the top ten ranked schools in New York. Needless to say recognition seldom comes to also-rans or close-competitors.

If Houghton expects to make it to the Nationals it must start coming up with the big wins. In the remaining week of the season Houghton will be playing the toughest part of its schedule meeting LeMoyne, Behrend,

King Enob Loses Championship To Holy Horst's Dried Raisins

Championship games usually follow a certain pattern. Low scoring, tight defense. In other words, they are played conservatively.

The Men's Houseleague football championship took place last Tuesday. It was anything but low-scoring. Holy Horst and the Dried Raisins put on a brilliant offensive display as they de-feated King Enob and His Mean Machine by the score of 62-31.

Pacing the attack of Holy Horst were quarterback Jeff Long, who called an excellent game, and wide receiver Jay Button who caught five touchdown passes. John Kilpatrick also played an excellent game. Jeff Hoffman, quarterback and captain of King Enob led their attack with some outstanding running.

Holy Horst, who finished second behind King Enob during the regular ton College, with season, reached the finals of the playoffs by defeating the Drybones in the semi-finals. The Drybones finished third during the regular season. King Enob defeated The Pixies, who fin ished fourth to set up the champion-ship clash. King Enob was unde-feated during the regular season. Holy Horst had lost once, to King

All in all the season has to be of good competition and close strug-gles. It also saw a good deal of participation on the part of the stu-dent body.

The men's schedule now turns towards the three man basketball tournament and houseleague and class
